CAREER SUMMARY

Shah Ehsan Habib received his Masters in sociology from the University of Dhaka and gained his Ph.D. from the University of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia in ২০০২. He is currently undertaking Graduate Certificate in Public Health and Communicable Disease from the University of Technology Sydney (UTS). He has been working as a Professor in the Department of Sociology, University of Dhaka, Bangladesh. He specializes in drug education and prevention, harm reduction, AIDS Education and Prevention for key population, adolescent and reproductive health including child health issues.

Over the past few years, he worked as an International Consultant (Team Leader) in many projects, putting his expertise in survey design and methodology, program evaluation and monitoring, data analysis, project management, and capacity building and training. Over the decade, he has designed surveys, undertaken formative and impact evaluations in Bangladesh and Nepal for DFID, UNAIDS, UNICEF, Care Bangladesh and FPAB. His long experience in survey methodology has led him to design in behavioural and socio-economic surveys, key population surveys in Bangladesh for a wide range of sectors including health, nutrition, reproductive age, women empowerment, drug education and HIV/AIDS, including other communicable diseases.

He has conducted lectures and seminars as well as supervised graduate students in the area of medical sociology, medical anthropology, maternal and child health, sexual and reproductive health, HIV/AIDS, and substance use. His prime competencies are carrying out operational research, monitoring and evaluation of projects in health related aspects especially maternal and child health, HIV/AIDS and other sexual and reproductive health issues. He has special expertise in carrying out baseline, mid-line and end line studies of projects and programmes in the field of health. He has been applying participatory, ethnographic, qualitative and quantitative research methodologies in the planning, collection, and analysis of data, writing research reports in a sample of operational research and monitoring and evaluation assignments.

He has extensive experience planning, developing and managing reproductive health projects, policy, and program development in maternal and newborn health, and reproductive health, with a particular focus on Bangladesh. He has experience in program activities, training and conducting implementation research, monitoring and evaluation, design of models of health care.

Recently his primary emphasis is on children who are infected and affected by HIV/AIDS, including surveillance in most-at-risk populations and the use of data for public health decision-making. In recent time, he worked as a Consultant to UNICEF Regional Office in South Asia (ROSA), Nepal in a project titled: "Mapping out HIV sensitive social protection in South Asia in 4 countries (Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, and Nepal). In 2013, he worked as a national Consultant to UNICEF Bangladesh in a project titled: 'Comprehensive mapping and size estimation of children infected and affected by HIV and AIDS (CABA) in Bangladesh'. In 2010, he also acted as a Consultant to UNICEF to review the assessment on national response to the needs of children affected by HIV/AIDS in low prevalence countries in SAARC region which was commissioned by UNICEF ROSA. Additionally, in 2011, he worked as a Consultant to UNICEF Nepal, working on 'Mainstreaming women and children issues in the National HIV and AIDS strategy.' Recently he worked as a Consultant to Save the Children in Bangladesh in a project titled: 'Assessment of impact of harm reduction interventions among people who inject drugs (PWID) in Dhaka'.

Over the past few years, he has worked on the DFID/FHI/UNAIDS-sponsored HIV Behavioural Study of various high-risk groups initiated by CARE Bangladesh and Save the Children Bangladesh. He has also served as a consultant on several projects examining drug users, sex workers, disease transmission, and AIDS prevention among adults, and has published widely in AIDS, prostitution and substance misuse prevention literature. His best known work includes the study of patterns of drug use and the transmission of HIV and hepatitis C in Sydney's major areas and a comprehensive analysis of the response of the Australian government to drug users, which has been published in the Health Education Journal (U.K.) and the Australian Journal of Social Issues. His work has brought international recognition and invitations to serve as a Research Fellow in the Wentworth Area Health Service, Sydney in 2002.

He worked as a Consultant for PIACT Bangladesh in a GFATM project titled: "Primary Prevention and Risk Reduction through Drug Resistance Education (DRE) which is supported by the Global Fund (Package GF# 902-R6 Scaling up). In 2010 he worked as a Deputy Team leader in a project of UNDP titled: Perception of illness and health seeking behaviour of five different ethnic groups in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, Bangladesh. In 2009, he worked as a Consultant with UNODC in a project titled: Needs and Existing Gaps towards Universal Access to HIV Prevention, Treatment and Care with Special Focus to HIV-TB Services for Drug Users in Bangladesh. He has attended a course on HIV/AIDS in the 21st Century: A Medical Anthropological Perspective at Amsterdam University. He also participated in a visitor scholar program in 2006 at the Multinational Institute of American Studies at New York University, U.S.A under a Full-bright scholarship.

Dr. Habib teaches a number of courses, including Research Methodology (SOC 302), Research Design and Monograph Writing (SOC 402) and Sociology of Health and Illness (SOC 513) at the graduate and postgraduate level of Dhaka University. He has been teaching Behavioural Sciences in the MPH Program at ASA University and State University respectively. He also teaches Society, Culture and Health (HEA 101) and Migration and Health (HS 515) for the MPH Program at Independent University, Bangladesh (IUB). He has published articles in journals such as Health Education Journal (U.K.), the Australian Journal of Social Issues, International Quarterly of Community Health Education (USA), Southeast Asian Journal of Tropical Medicine and Public Health (Thailand) and Japanese Journal of Alcohol Studies and Drug Dependence.

RELEVANT SKILLS

My diverse local and overseas employment experience has challenged my ability to accept and adapt in order to remain a productive member of the International workforce. My main areas of research over the past decade are medical sociology, drug resistance education, sexual and reproductive health, social policy issues related to social protection of children affected by HIV and AIDS, and AIDS Education and Prevention. Over the past five years, I have been working mainly on medical sociology and social policy research projects, particularly issues related to CABA, AIDS, hepatitis C, drug education and policy issues related to national HIV/AIDS strategic plan. The details of completed projects are found in the publications section.
